PHASE I: UPPER BODY ARCHITECTURE

1. Chest Circumference

IN

Pass the tape beneath the armpits, level across shoulder blades. Encircle the absolute fullest zone of the chest. Maintain natural respiration.

2. Shoulder Span

Rest arms naturally at sides with squared shoulders. Measure horizontally across upper back curve from outer left shoulder bone apex to the

3. Precision Sleeve Length

IN

Anchor tape at uppermost structural shoulder seam edge. Guide down the natural exterior path of the arm over the elbow, terminating at the

4. Jacket Architecture Length

IN

Locate prominent base center point of back neck collar. Extend tape vertically down spine alignment path. Conclude where torso ends, parallel

5. Collar Circumference

IN

Stand erect with chin parallel to flooring. Encircle neck base directly beneath Adam's apple line. Insert one finger flat for clearance.

6. Athletic Arm Profile (Bicep)

IN

Let arm hang freely in an un-flexed, relaxed state. Measure horizontally around the absolute widest peak point of the bicep muscle curve.

7. Belly Button Circumference

IN

Stand relaxed in natural posture without abdominal contraction. Encircle abdomen horizontally, aligned precisely with the center of the navel.

8. Sternum Midpoint Drop

IN

Measure across the absolute midpoint of the sternum plate (breastbone) between the second and third rib intersections for optimal front-balance

PHASE II: LOWER BODY ARCHITECTURE

1. Formal Waistline

 IN

Stand completely erect, avoiding abdominal contraction. Encircle natural waistband zone, situated immediately above the crest of the hip bone.

2. Internal Inseam Drop

 IN

Utilize a well-fitted formal trouser baseline layout. Track from high interior crotch point down inside seam straight down to where shoe heel meets floor.

3. External Outseam Drop

 IN

Maintain normal straight vertical posture. Trace outer paths from upper lip edge of traditional waistband line straight down side leg profile to floor.

4. Seat Profile (Hips)

 IN

Position heels tightly and firmly together. Encircle absolute widest horizontal span across lower hips and full gluteal muscle curves.

5. Upper Thigh Profile

 IN

Distribute physical weight evenly onto both legs. Encircle widest region of the upper thigh, situated just beneath primary crotch junction line.
